The Weston modular cabinet is one of the products 1429 Mfg will bring to its Las Vegas Market debut.

Specializing in infusing artwork on solid wood furniture, 1429 Mfg started their company in April 2015 with a strong opening exhibition at High Point Market.

"Our unique construction process has attracted many designers and specifiers especially in the hospitality and contract field," said Gross. "We know there's untapped potential on the west coast with the booming commercial market that we can reach out to with our Vegas market launch."

1429 Mfg sources different types of wood to serve as the canvas for which different patterns get infused directly onto the wood surface. Creating furniture from solid wood allows for increased durability of the product and structural integrity that can support large scale frames.

The occasional manufacturer will showcase its bestselling products at the Las Vegas Market: Vera cocktail table, Weston modular cabinets, Payton console, Carrington accent table and more.

"Our product line currently consists of all types of tables and cabinets but with our infusion technology, we can expand to wall art, accessories, and even upholstery," said Hamilton. "We can also customize any of our existing styles with any artwork the designer provides, so while we may only be showing a specific number of products, the possibilities are limitless because of all the different artwork options."

1429 Mfg will exhibit at P2-5002.
