Bottega Noto makes its High Point Market debut

Benchmarked Italian casegoods at a new standalone showroom
116 S. Lindsay Street · Open October 15–21

HIGH POINT, N.C. — Bottega Noto introduces its collection of benchmarked Italian casegoods at Fall 2026 High Point Market, welcoming the trade to a new standalone showroom at 116 S. Lindsay Street. The showroom opens October 15, ahead of Market, and remains open through October 21, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily.

Made in Italy through a network of specialist workshops, the collection brings together cabinetmaking, decorative veneers, marquetry, finishing and metalwork. Its character comes from the interplay of expressive materials, considered proportions and details shaped by hand.

Painted finishes, stains and richly figured veneers offer a range of expressions across the casegoods collection. A selection of curated antiques adds another layer to the showroom presentation, placing new work in conversation with pieces chosen for their character and history.

Bottega Noto serves the trade, with collections, finish options, customization and project support for interior designers, architects and hospitality professionals. Market visitors are invited to experience the materials and finishes in person and meet with the team.
