FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Worthen Furniture Debuts Taverna, a Modular Brass and Steel System, at High Point Market Fall 2026

Patent-pending fittings let designers configure shelving, wine racks, kitchen accessories, drapery rods and more in solid brass, powder-coated steel, or two-tone combinations.

HIGH POINT, N.C., October 14, 2026 — Worthen Furniture today introduced Taverna, a new series that offers a slimmer, more modern take on bistro-style shelving. Taverna will be Worthen's featured introduction at Fall High Point Market, October 17–21, 2026, at IH411 in the IHFC.

Built on a patent-pending system of fittings and tubing, Taverna extends well beyond open shelving. The same components configure wine racks, kitchen accessories, drapery rods and more, giving designers multiple configuration options while a project is still on the drawing board.

“Worthen sells its hand made product through designers, architects, builders and select retail partners, offering hand-finished brass and steel designs for residential, commercial and hospitality projects,” .said Doug Rozenboom, CEO of Worthen Furniture. “The patent-pending fittings give designers multiple options for configuration during the design process, so the system works for the project rather than the other way around.”

Materials and finishes

Taverna is available in solid brass and solid tubular brass, and the brass components accept any of Worthen's hand-applied finishes. The collection is also offered in every Worthen powder-coated color and finish.

Two-tone options let customers specify one color for the fittings and another for the tubing. Brass can serve as one half of a two-tone pairing alongside steel and any powder-coated color.

Delivery options

Worthen can deliver Taverna fully assembled for a project, or ship it flat-packed to its destination for on-site installation.

“Taverna will continue to expand, offering choices and solutions for almost any room,” Rozenboom said. “Whether a project needs it completely assembled or flat-packed to the job site, we can deliver it the way our customers prefer.”

See Taverna at Market

Trade buyers, dealers and designers can see Taverna in person at Worthen's showroom during Fall High Point Market, October 17–21, 2026. More information is available at taverna.worthen.us.
